Title

1. This code shall be known as The Employment Code of Conduct for the Employment Council for the Undertaking of the Zimbabwe National Water Authority.

Scope and date of operation

2. This code shall apply to all permanent, contract and casual employees in grades 8 -15 who are in the employment of the Zimbabwe National Water Authority. For the avoidance of doubt this code does not cover managerial employees who will be covered by the National Code of Conduct S.I. 15 of 2006. This agreement shall operate from the first day of the month following its registration.

3. The guiding principles of the code

3.1 To ensure rules of natural justice are observed in dispute settlement, which include—

- the need to properly and thoroughly investigate alleged offences before a penalty is passed;
- the need to be objective in dealing with disciplinary matters;
- the right for alleged offenders to be heard and to call witnesses before a decision on a matter can be made;
- the right to appeal against a decision when aggrieved.

3.2 To ensure uniformity in application and speedy resolution of disputes and grievances.

3.3 To recognise discipline as corrective and educative in the first place and that punitive action will only be applied where the former have failed.

3.4 To acknowledge the strong correlation between discipline and a grievance-free environment and employee morale and productivity.

4. Access to code

4.1 All employees covered by this Code in the Undertaking shall receive the necessary training in order to be aware of the existence of this Code and the Code and any amendments to it shall be displayed on notice boards at all work places.

4.2 The Code shall be subject to review every five years in conformance to section 101(11) of the Labour Act [Chapter 28:01].

Rights and responsibilities of employer

5. Employer shall have the following rights and responsibilities in terms of this Code—

(a) to manage and conduct the business of the Authority effectively and efficiently;

(b) to maintain order and discipline in accordance with the provisions of this Code;

(c) to ensure that employees abide by the provisions of this Code;

(d) to ensure that fair labour practices at the workplace as defined in the Labour Act [Chapter 28:01] are adhered to;

(e) to work with employee representatives in establishing effective disciplinary and grievance handling procedures;

(f) to educate employees on the provisions of the Code.

Rights and duties of employee representatives

6. In this Code, the Employee Representative shall have the following rights and duties—

(a) to promote and protect the rights and interests of all employees;

(b) to work with the employer in establishing effective disciplinary and grievance procedures;

(c) to ensure that fellow employees familiarise themselves with and abide by the provisions of this Code;

(d) to ensure that fair labour practices at the workplace as defined in the Labour Act [Chapter 28:01] are adhered to.

Rights and duties of the employee

7. Under the contract of employment, the employee has the following rights and duties—

(a) to all rights conferred to him or her under the Constitution, in particular those in section 65, as well as those under Part 11 of the Labour Act [Chapter 28:01];

(b) not to be unfairly dismissed, and that when he or she is alleged to have breached this Code, he or she will be subjected to a fair hearing, and in respect of his or her duties;

(c) to render his or her undivided services to the employer at all times prescribed under the collective bargaining agreement and to do so with diligence, competence and efficiency;

(d) to obey all lawful instructions given to him or her by the employer, and to generally subordinate him or herself to the employer.

(e) disclosing personal details or giving the personal files of any employee to an unauthorised person or agent.

10. Disciplinary proceedings and appeal procedure determination of offences

10.1 No employee shall be subjected to any disciplinary proceedings for misconduct unless the alleged offence is specified under clause 9 of this Code.

11. Suspension pending investigation

11.1 Suspension may be ordered by the employer in accordance with the following—

11.2 If the employer considers it appropriate, summary suspension with or without pay and benefits may be effected immediately:

Provided that there shall be no suspension for an offence in Category A:

11.3 Where the employee has been suspended without pay and benefits this shall not exceed fourteen working days.

11.4 Where an alleged offence is not proved, or the employees' appeal is upheld, any pay and benefits withheld shall be reinstated forthwith in full.

12. Investigation process, record and rights of appearance and appeal

12.1 A supervisor who has belief that an offence has been committed in all instances shall carry out an investigation into the matter—

12.2 In every case, the investigation shall be conducted by the employee's immediate superior. The superior may, however, if he or she deems it necessary, call on personnel from other departments, e.g. Audit or Security, to help him or her carry out the investigation. Notwithstanding such assistance, the employee's immediate supervisor shall remain accountable for both the process and results of the investigation.

12.3 An investigation in terms of section 12.2 shall require the following—

(a) written statements from accused employee(s);

(b) statements from witnesses and others involved, if any;

(c) examination of documents and records;

(d) physical examination of equipment or vehicles involved in the alleged breach;

(e) written description of the event.

12.4 After an investigation, the investigator shall determine whether or not there is a prima facie case, for a hearing. If there is no prima facie case the matter shall be closed and the accused employee informed immediately in writing. If there is a prima facie case, the following shall apply—

(a) if the alleged offence is occurring for the first time and would, if proven, attract a maximum penalty of a verbal warning, the investigator shall conduct the hearing. The accused employee shall be given two working days' notice of the hearing. The accused employee shall be entitled to be represented by a legal practitioner at his or her own expense, a member of the worker's committee or fellow employee. At the hearing there must be present a member of the worker's committee as an observer. If the verdict is "guilty", a verbal warning shall be imposed and this shall be in the form of a minute witnessed by the member of the worker's committee attending as an observer. Such minute will remain alive for three months after, which it will expire. If the accused employee is acquitted, the employee's record shall be cleared of all reference to the case;

(b) in all other cases, the matter shall be heard by a hearing committee composed of a Chairperson who shall be a member of management who is not the investigator and equal numbers of up to two representatives of the worker's committee and management. It shall be the duty of the investigator, through and with the assistance of the Human Resources Department, to inform the accused employee, in writing, of the nature of the charge at least three working days before the hearing. The notice to attend the hearing must indicate the time and venue for the hearing. The accused employee shall be entitled to be represented by a legal practitioner at his or her own expense, trade union or worker's committee member or a fellow employee of his or her choice and to call and/or examine witnesses.

12.5 In all cases, the verdict of a disciplinary process, together with reasons, must be made and conveyed to the accused employee within five working days. An employee found guilty must always be informed about the right of appeal provided for in the Code.

13. Appeals

13.1 There shall be no right of appeal against a verbal warning.

13.2 All appeals against the decision of the hearing committee shall go to the Grievance and Disciplinary Committee (GDC) of the National Employment Council for the Undertaking of the Zimbabwe National Water Authority in the requisite form. (see Appendix VI).

The appeal shall be lodged in writing to the General Secretary within five working days after receipt of the verdict of the hearing committee. A copy of the appeal shall at the same time be delivered to the hearing committee that dealt with the matter and whose decision is the subject of the present appeal.

13.3 On arrival at the NEC, an appeal made under section 13.2 shall, unless judged by the Committee to be frivolous or without merit, be copied to the employer with a letter inviting representations if the appeal is to be opposed. These representations shall be lodged with the NEC within five working days and shall include six copies of—

(a) a memorandum setting out detailed representations in respect of the grounds of appeal;

(b) the letter notifying the employee of the alleged offence;

(c) any statement of case/defense by the employee in respect of the allegations;

(d) the records of the initial hearing into the allegation, including witnesses' statements, other material evidence, cross-examinations and the findings of the hearing;

(e) the detailed record of the Works Council hearing of the employee's appeal together with their decision and the reasoning thereof;

(f) the comments or review of the Works Council in respect of the appeal to the NEC.

13.4 In order to arrive at a determination, the Committee may—

(a) if in its opinion the written submissions are sufficient, uphold or dismiss the appeal either wholly or in part, or

(b) remit the appeal and/or the respondents' representations for rectification or for further evidence; or

(c) hear argument from the parties concerned in the appeal, who may be legally represented, provided the other party is given the right to appear, cross-examine, and to argue in rebuttal.

13.5 The GDC shall make a determination within 14 working days of receipt of the appeal provided this period may be extended in writing to the party concerned.

13.6 The determination shall be conveyed in writing to the appellant and respondent, or to those representing them.

13.7 Appeals against determinations of the GDC may be made to the Labour Court within the time prescribed in the Act and rules of that court.

14. Penalties

14.1 Penalties for acts of misconduct shall be in accordance with Appendix I and shall be four levels of severity as follows: verbal warning, written warning, final written warning and dismissal. These written warnings correspond with acts of misconducts described in this Code as serious, very serious and gross misconducts:

Provided that none of the penalties shall be mandatory.

15. Written warnings

15.1 Written warnings shall be in the form set out in Appendix III and shall be signed as provided therein. If the employee refuses to sign to acknowledge receipt, this shall be deemed to be insubordination. This shall not impair the employee's right to enter an appeal.

15.2 A first written warning shall be disregarded for disciplinary purposes after six (6) months, and a final written warning after twelve (12) months. Both categories of warning shall be retained on file for record.

15.3 Where an offence which would ordinarily attract a verbal warning occurs during the subsistence of a verbal warning for a similar offence, a written warning shall be given setting out the details of the offence in the form set out in Appendix III.

15.4 Where a first written warning exists and the same offence is repeated or a similar offence (i.e. another offence but in the same category of offences is committed, a final written warning shall be given with a caution that dismissal will result from the commission of any other offence other than one with a verbal warning during the validity of the final written warning.

15.5 An offence is regarded as a second or repeat offence when the penalty for the first one is still valid and the repeat offence does not carry a verbal warning.

15.6 Whenever a final written warning is given, it shall be accompanied by a dismissal caution stating that any commission of a similar offence during the currency of the final written warning may lead to dismissal.

16. Dismissal procedure

16.1 An employee shall not be dismissed arbitrarily.

16.2 An employee shall not be dismissed solely because a criminal charge is pending, or because he or she is absent having been detained in custody or held for questioning by the police.

16.3 An employee can only be dismissed after following the disciplinary and appeal procedures set out in this Code.

16.4 In all cases where an employee who has been charged with a dismissable offence and the verdict of "guilty" is made, the accused employee must be allowed to mitigate before a penalty is passed against him or her, provided that the complainant is also given the opportunity to make submissions in aggravation. Both submissions in mitigation and aggravation may be made orally or in writing.

17. Works council disciplinary committee

17.1 COMPOSITION OF WORKS COUNCIL DISCIPLINARY COMMITTEE

17.1.1 The Disciplinary Committee shall be constituted as follows—

(a) Chairperson of the Works Council;

(b) One or two Management representatives who sit on the Works Council;

(c) One or two members of the Workers Committee who sit on the Works Council; and

(d) Secretary, who is an internal Human Resources Practitioner.

17.1.2 The Works Council Disciplinary Committee must always be evenly balanced in terms of Management and Worker's Committee representation and at least one member from either side, plus the Chairperson of the Works Council will constitute the Works Council Disciplinary Committee.

17.1.3 The Chairperson of the Works Council Disciplinary Committee will generally lead discussion in a non-partisan manner.

17.1.4 In the event of a split decision, the Chairperson shall exercise a casting vote to break the deadlock.

17.1.5 Ordinarily the Chairperson shall make arrangements, through the Human Resources Department, for the convening of all disciplinary hearings before the Works Council. He or she will ensure that parties to the dispute have all the material, including the necessary documents, relating to any matter coming to the Works Council Disciplinary Committee.

17.1.6 Human Resources Department will provide secretarial services to the Works Council Disciplinary Committee and generally facilitate the smooth management of all disciplinary issues referred to the Works Council Disciplinary Committee by liaising with the parties and their representatives.

18. The national employment council grievance and disciplinary committee

18.1 There shall be established a Grievance and Disciplinary Committee of the National Employment Council constituted as follows—

(a) two representatives from the employer party; and

(b) two representatives from the trade union; and the Chairman of the National Employment Council Grievance and Disciplinary Committee (GDC) who shall be the alternating vice chairpersons of the Council or the independent Chairman of the National Employment Council. The Chairman shall vote only in the event of a deadlock and, in that event, his or her vote shall be a casting vote.

18.2 The Grievance and Disciplinary Committee shall consider valid appeals made to it in terms of this Code, and shall make and notify its determination thereon to the appellant and respondent within fourteen (14) working days of receipt of the appeal, which may be decided on the papers or after hearing parties, depending on the complexity of the issues and or the views of the parties involved.

18.3 An appeal from the determination of the Grievance and Disciplinary Committee shall lie to the Labour Court within such time and in such manner as may be provided for, or prescribed in terms of the Act and Court Rules.

19. Role of human resources department

19.1 The Human Resources Department shall liaise with disciplinary hearing officials, including the chairperson of the Works Council Disciplinary Committee, in ensuring that all internal hearings are managed within the time frames stipulated under this Code.

19.2 The Human Resources Department shall provide advisory and secretarial services to both the hearing officials and the chairperson of the Works Council Disciplinary Committee.

19.3 Human Resources Department shall maintain neutrality in its dealings with the parties to the dispute.

19.4 As far as is possible Human Resources Department shall be responsible to convey all documents relating to disciplinary matters appealed from the Works Council Disciplinary Committee to the Grievance and Disciplinary Committee at the National Employment Council.

19.5 In all instances, Human Resources Department shall note the dates by date stamping all documents and processes filed by the parties to the dispute.

20. Grievance handling

20.1 Definition of grievance

A grievance is complaint or dissatisfaction by an employee or employees brought about by any particular condition or happening at work, or about conditions of employment or any offending behavior on the part of management or a fellow employee. All employees have a right to seek redress of grievances.

21. Grievance Procedure

21.1 First Stage: Immediate supervisor

(a) an aggrieved employee or a group of employees must first put verbally or in writing the grievance to the immediate supervisor within two (2) working days:

(b) in attempting to resolve the grievance, the supervisor shall—

(i) hold a hearing of the grievance;

(ii) permit the employees to be represented by a member of the worker's committee or another employee of his or her choice;

(iii) offer counseling if necessary with a view to arriving at an equitable settlement of the grievance;

(iv) evaluate the grievance and communicate the decision to the aggrieved employee or group of employees;

(c) the supervisor shall complete the process within a period of two (2) working days.

21.2 Second Stage: Head of Department/Catchment Manager

If the aggrieved employee or group of employees is dissatisfied with the supervisor's decision, he or she should submit a written grievance in the appropriate form in Appendix (IV) within a period of two working days. The department head shall do his or her best to resolve the grievance and communicate his or her decision in writing to the aggrieved employee or group of employees with a period of two working days.

21.3 Third Stage: National Employment Council

The Grievance and Disciplinary Committee shall make a decision within fourteen (14) working days of receipt and communicate it in writing to the aggrieved party and to management through the chairperson of the Works Council.

21.4 Fourth Stage: Referral to the Designated Agent:

If a grievance remains unresolved after the expiry of thirty (30) days from the date of its reference to an immediate supervisor in terms of subsection 1(a), the aggrieved employee may refer the grievance to a designated agent, who may then deal with it in terms of the Act.

Principles guiding the management of grievances

22. (1) Management and the Worker's Committee shall ensure that the necessary secretarial and other facilities are made available for the smooth functioning of the grievance machinery.

(2) Any employees who raises a grievance shall not be made to suffer any loss in wages for any time lost in this manner.

(3) No manager shall handle a grievance in which the complaint raised concerns that manager.

(4) The representatives on the NEC Grievance and Disciplinary Committee shall have the right of access to any document connected with the inquiry which may become necessary to understand the employee or group of employees' grievances, except that where appropriate in the case of a document of a confidential nature, management may impose the duty of confidentiality upon the parties involved in the dispute.
